Trama Jerry is out at Gulmarg during a snowstorm, caught in a snowball and rolled up in a column while the title card and credits are shown. Jerry rolls as a side effect from being in the snowball until he comes across another pillar and sees a cheese shop. Jerry then peeks out the window and sees the cheeses. He steals the door and wakes Tom, who opens the door promptly, just to not find anyone there. He goes out cold; however, Jerry sneaked under the cat and the door closes on Tom. Tom cools early and does everything he can to stay warm. Tom then peeks out the window and sees Jerry light a fire. His smile is envious. Try to get into the fireplace (using an animated sequence that Jones would later recycle in How the Grinch Stole Christmas!), but Jerry chose that moment to light the fire. Jerry hears Tom throwing around, screaming from pain, and falling from the edge of the building. While Tom falls from a comfit, Jerry is a little puzzled. Jerry observes the great variety of cheeses and walks in the air towards a large amount of Emmenthal cheese. He starts diving in and out of the cheese hole while Tom can open the door. Only the tail remains unfrozen, and Tom uses it to push and to turn on a fire to thaw. Jerry then eats the Emmentaler and jodel. Tom feels and sees Jerry through the holes and pulls out the mouse with a pillow fireplint. Jerry comes to and Tom then sees that he does a shiver of guilt. Jerry is an unfortunate victim of his great imagination, which follows the cheese while it comes fly everywhere. Tom runs away from the mouse to see most of the cheese disappeared. Jerry then approaches the mouse, slaps it between the legs, hopefully "cold" mouse and throws it out into the snowstorm. Tom goes back to sleep, but soon he feels guilty for what he just did. A shiver of guilt. Imagine Jerry's Spirit Flying over his similar to the ones on the night before Christmas. Jerry's fear is solid frozen, he runs out with a change of heart and immediately brings the frozen mouse inside. Tom wraps Jerry in a warm blanket and revives his mouse with a spoon of an 180-proof snap spoon, saving him from hypothermia. Jerry regains consciousness and collides together with a bunch of dolls and puts on a Swiss dress from those dolls. Tom plays the piano, and Jerry happily admires and dances around the music until the comic book closes.
