Possessor of a technique used for the adaptation of the classics, Alejandro Casona (1903-1965) presents in the lord of the spurs of gold, one of his latest productions, a vision of Don Francis de Quevedo, in which the historian has entered into lyricism. This is such a teacher of the writer, that the texts in prose and verse are dramatically life at the service of a lesson: that one should remain true to oneself, to a truth. Satisfy the teaching, Casona remains faithful in her way of doing the theatre, which combines continuous fantasy and reality as inseparable components of life. A good example of this task offers the five pieces of several different little shifts under the title of Tovil Jovial. Some of them were written for his representation in the pedagogical missions that in the early years threatened the cities of Spain. Since then, both those and later created in America, increase the echo of a positive popular response. "Retaboy Jovial", a series of short plays written in the tone of farce, enjoys an enormous acceptance among the young generations of students, as we ha d, give them, among the simple people of Spain a rural one for those who Alejandro Casona wrote them. The freshness and naturalness of the text, the language of care that brings us closer to a Spanish flavor, humor and irony, and the intelligent that-yelth of their arguments in which appearances are always deceptive, are some of the keys to their pee Note: Shipping to Spanish Islands, Balearic Islands and They are carried out through Message195; 173A URGENT. Our Natacha raises the problem of coexistence and social justice, referring to the aspect of psychological and moral rehabilitation of teenagers in a reformatory. She shows suicide in spring in a comedy in which the fusion of fantastic elements, optimistic and abstract are incessant conflicts with the realities of the world we live. Covered comment: reflect this volume two of the most profound symbolic pieces of Alejandro Casona. "The boat without a fisherman" will have to face two worlds: the complicated of finance, made of calculation and artifice, and the simple world of fishermen, where he performs man in his direct work, in contact with nature, which, although sometimes he agrees, is the possible environment only for the human being, to whom love saves. "Seven Screams in the Sea", a piece of great dramatic claims, senses the human pain for "leitmotiv" central from its existential interrogators: seven beings, set against death, crawl in, show what they are really like, without tapujos.
